Roya Kitchen & Bath Design cares about you and your home. Fully transparent, Roya promises no hidden fees and no guesswork. They offer a reduced risk of going over budget through their line-item estimates. Utilizing this free process, clients know in advance exactly what services and materials they’ll be receiving. Roya also provides clients with a free 3D rendering of their project. “We go to their homes, take a look at everything and measure everything,” says Shahin Farokh, designer and co-owner of Roya’s. “They pay nothing for their design and they can see how their space is going to look after the work is done,” he explains.

Shahin relates that although they are a for-profit business, their philosophy and what they stand for is all about caring for people, their homes and the community. “We care about what we create. We take people from the dream phase to the design phase to the production phase, creating something they’ve been dreaming about for years.” He stresses that Roya strives for excellence, perfection, and quality that speaks for itself. “That’s the goal,” he says. “That’s what we stand for.”

Roya’s lead designer, Mindy Farokh, Shahin’s wife, is an integral part of the business. A Certified Master Kitchen and Bath Designer with over 20 years of experience, Mindy is passionate about helping people realize their dreams. “What I get really excited about is just going into people’s homes and listening to what their dreams and visions are – knowing I can make this happen,” she says.

“We have a lot of resources as far as materials go,” Mindy explains, which allows for tailoring a client’s needs and wants to their budget. Working hand-in-hand with their valued subcontractors, Mindy makes sure that all the details a client is looking for take shape. She sees a project through all the way to the end from the first appointment of information gathering to all the other steps in between.

As a business owner, Shahin believes in doing his part to give back to the community. “We help take care of other people through our church,” he shares, adding also that “the business is set up to help in the community.” Roya often steps in and helps out on construction sites, lending a hand particularly for projects benefiting the elderly.
